Description:

From Alan Furst, whom The New York Times calls “America’s preeminent spy novelist,” comes an epic story of romantic love, love of country, and love of freedom—the story of a secret war fought in elegant hotel bars and first-class railway cars, in the mountains of Spain and the backstreets of Berlin. It is an inspiring, thrilling saga of everyday people forced by their hearts’ passion to fight in the war against tyranny. By 1938, hundreds of Italian intellectuals, lawyers and journalists, university professors and scientists had escaped Mussolini’s fascist government and taken refuge in Paris. There, amid the struggles of émigré life, they founded an Italian resistance, with an underground press that smuggled news and encouragement back to Italy. Fighting fascism with typewriters, they produced 512 clandestine newspapers. The Foreign Correspondent is their story. Paris, a winter night in 1938: a murder/suicide at a discreet lovers' hotel. But this is no romantic tragedy—it is the work of the OVRA, Mussolini's fascist secret police, and is meant to eliminate the editor of Liberazione, a clandestine émigré newspaper. Carlo Weisz, who has fled from Trieste and secured a job as a foreign correspondent with the Reuters bureau, becomes the new editor. Weisz is, at that moment, in Spain, reporting on the last campaign of the Spanish civil war. But as soon as he returns to Paris, he is pursued by the French Sûreté, by agents of the OVRA, and by officers of the British Secret Intelligence Service. In the desperate politics of Europe on the edge of war, a foreign correspondent is a pawn, worth surveillance, or blackmail, or murder. The Foreign Correspondent is the story of Carlo Weisz and a handful of antifascists: the army officer known as "Colonel Ferrara," who fights for a lost cause in Spain; Arturo Salamone, the shrewd leader of a resistance group in Paris; and Christa von Schirren, the woman who becomes the love of Weisz's life, herself involved in a doomed resistance underground in Berlin. The Foreign Correspondent is Alan Furst at his absolute best—taut and powerful, enigmatic and romantic, with sharp, seductive writing that takes the reader through darkness and intrigue to a spectacular denouement.

This novel by Alan Furst spans the period from December 1938 to July 1939 and takes place in Italy, Berlin, but mostly in Paris. The central character is Carlo Weisz, an Italian émigré whose day job is a foreign correspondent for the Reuters bureau in Paris. But his writing talents also have him working at odd hours as editor and occasional contributor to a clandestine newspaper that is part of the resistance against Mussolini's fascist government. He's also the ghostwriter on behalf of Colonel Ferrara, an Italian army officer and antifascist, who is writing an angry book about his military experiences. Weisz is walking a tightrope of intrigue and is a target of the Italian fascist underground organization, British and Russian spy outfits, as well as the French Sûreté. In one clever bit of writing, Weisz has been called to a meeting in Furst's favorite fictional Paris brasserie, the Heiningers, and meets a fellow named André Szara who is correspondent for Pravda but is also a Russian spy working for the NKVD. The alert reader and fan of Furst's novels, like myself, will recognize Szara as the protagonist of an earlier book called Dark Star. There's somehow time in Weisz's life for romance. The love of his life, Christa von Schirren, lives in Berlin and is married. Weisz tries to persuade her to leave and join him in Paris before the war breaks out. She puts him off, however, citing unfinished work with the anti-Nazi underground before she can join him. Meanwhile, Weisz is not without feminine companionship, thanks to the wiles of Veronique, a Paris art dealer. And if that weren't enough, there is also Madame Rigaud, Weisz's landlady. She's playful and gives him strong hints that her black dress could be removed to reveal a lovely treat for him. An enjoyable read as Furst captures the growing gloom of coming war while the tension builds to a satisfying conclusion.
